

METRO wants your help redesigning its transit network to better fit the growing, changing Houston of today and tomorrow.

To better meet the region's transportation needs, METRO is undertaking the System Reimagining project. The project was developed based on community feedback, the opening of three new light rail lines in the next year, and a continuing need to improve. We need your help to identify:

- What are the most important purposes for transit?
- What should our goals be?
- How should we set service priorities based on various needs?

We want your input:
